A standards-based report card lists the most important skills students should learn in each subject at a particular grade level. For example, in math, a first-grade report card might list these skills: number and operations, patterns, functions and algebra, geometry and spatial sense, measurement, and data analysis, statistics and probability.

Standards based Report Cards Curriculum Instruction

The standards-based report cards are much more detailed than a traditional report card. Instead of just providing a grade for a subject, they tell how your child's knowledge and skill match specific standards for each core subject, especially in English language arts and mathematics.
